

Development and Expansion Incentive for Manufacturing

DEI(Mfg)

1. What is DEI for Manufacturing?

DEI for Manufacturing “DEI(Mfg)” encourages companies to engage in high value-added manufacturing activities in Singapore, either through a new set-up or an expansion of existing operations in Singapore.

2. Who can apply for DEI(Mfg)?

Your entity can apply for the incentive if it is registered and operating in Singapore.

3. How does DEI(Mfg) work?

Tax at a concessionary rate of 5%, 10% or 15% would be imposed on your entity’s qualifying income in excess of the base income. Qualifying income refers to income derived from qualifying activities. In this case, the qualifying activities shall be the manufacturing activities that your entity intends to undertake in Singapore.

The base income is the average income from qualifying activities of the entity for the 36 months immediately preceding the DEI(Mfg).

The base income, as well as non-qualifying income, is taxed at the prevailing corporate tax rate. Any loss (i.e. unabsorbed allowances, losses or donations) arising from qualifying activities would be treated as concessionary rate loss for the purpose of applying Section 37A of the Income Tax Act.
